PAGE CONTEST CASE RESTS—Whether or not the last will of the late H. Page will be given to remain for the court to decide. The young father, who was deeply devoted to his small son and daughter, bequeathed them his entire estate, a large portion of which is being contested for by his second wife, who left him several months previous to his death. There were no new developments in the case yesterday. All the evidence in the case was given and the court will be a few days before Judge Latham hands down his decision. He has taken the matter under advisement and in the meantime J. L. Gust, attorney for the children's guardian, C. R. IT WAS DONE INSTANTLY—Just as long as it required for the jury to walk right in the jury room, turn around and walk right out again, it took to reach a verdict in the case of the state vs. George Morris. Morris was found guilty of removing property from the state with intent to defraud creditors. His attorneys, A. S. Hawkins and George Stovell will argue motion for a new trial this morning which will be opposed by County Attorney Clyde Gandy and Assistant County Attorney Leon S. Jacobs, who won the case for the state. The prosecution proved that Morris, who was engaged in building school houses in district 66, obtained receipted bills from different concerns from which he secured building materials promising to make payment in full the following day. When he received his warrant from the school authorities he deposited the sum in his own name in the Phoenix National bank and cashed a check for $1850. After deeding his property to his wife he left for Colorado where she joined him later in the summer. The J. D. Halstead Lumber Company, of Valley Hardware Company, with whom Morris did business, offered evidence that tended toward his conviction.
